Guitar, Bass Guitar, and Ukulele Instruction

Esteban Anastasio

Mr. Anastasio is a professional guitarist. He has been playing guitar for over 25 years. Prior to moving to Boise, Esteban spent 15 years in Atlanta, Georgia living and working as a professional musician. Esteban was a professor of guitar at Georgia State University and played in various professional groups and ensembles while touring around the Southeast. Here in Boise, Mr. Anastasio is the founding member of an all-acoustic Mediterranean modern music ensemble called Tambalka as well as the lead electric guitarist for the African Rock group Afrosonics. He performs frequently as a solo classical and flamenco guitarist in various venues around Boise.

Mr. Anastasio is a dedicated musician and educator and has helped numerous students master the art of playing the guitar. He specializes in classical/finger-style and Flamenco guitar as well as electric guitar mastery. Esteban focuses on great form and techniques to get students playing extremely quickly. Methods in intermediate and advanced song writing and improvisation are also available. Esteban is now teaching private customized lessons for beginner and advanced students and will be implementing guitar classes at the Dunkley School of Music.

Dr. Matt Puzan

Dr. Puzan started playing guitar at age six. He soon began picking Bluegrass music on the weekends at local music festivals with his father. Thanks to a stack of Rock albums and an electric guitar left behind by his older sister's ex-boyfriend, Matt spent his teen years jamming in various garage bands. This led to numerous performances at the many renowned Rock and Metal clubs throughout Los Angeles in the 80s and 90s.

During these years, Puzan completed his music education. He earned a Bachelor's Degree in Guitar Performance, a Master's Degree in Music Composition, and a Doctorate Degree in Music Theory. In college he pursued Classical and Jazz training and earned a Teaching Certificate for Public School instruction.

Matt has played on numerous studio sessions in the Southern California area and toured with various Cover and Punk Rock bands. In 2000, he moved to Boise, Idaho, where he opened his private teaching studio. In addition to working with his many students, Matt continues to perform regularly with various Original Artists and Cover Bands around the Boise area.
